A very excellent Memorial sermon was delivered by Rev. J. R. Hill in the M. E. church on Sunday morning from the words "Greater love hath no man than this—that a man lay down his life for his friends. His equally excellent address to the graduating class, in the evening was from the words of the Saviour, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, unto God the things that are God's." The idea of practical education, its limits and attainments, the public schools, past and present, and the value of an education such as may be obtained in this day and age, were forcibly impressed upon the mind of his hearers, as was also the nobler and higher service of rendering unto God the things that are His.

The Zanesville Times Recorder of May 22, contains an interesting notice of the Shafter Business College of that City, which was founded less than a year ago. In the recent election of officers, C. O. Miller, a former Highland boy and graduate of our High School, was made Secretary of that Institution, in which he holds a third interest. He has been identified with the Shafter College since its organization as instructor in practical book-keeping. His many friends in this community will learn with pleasure of his advancement. He is a young man who possesses those sterling qualities of heart and mind that will insure success in whatever line of work he may engage.

A very interesting program was presented at the Christian Endeavor Mid Year Rally of Wilmington yearly meeting union held at the Friends Church on Saturday last.
